

School Reentry Information

Updates regarding School Reentry: This is a fluid situation and changes frequently, according to the New Mexico Department of Health. Please check this page frequently for the most up to date information!

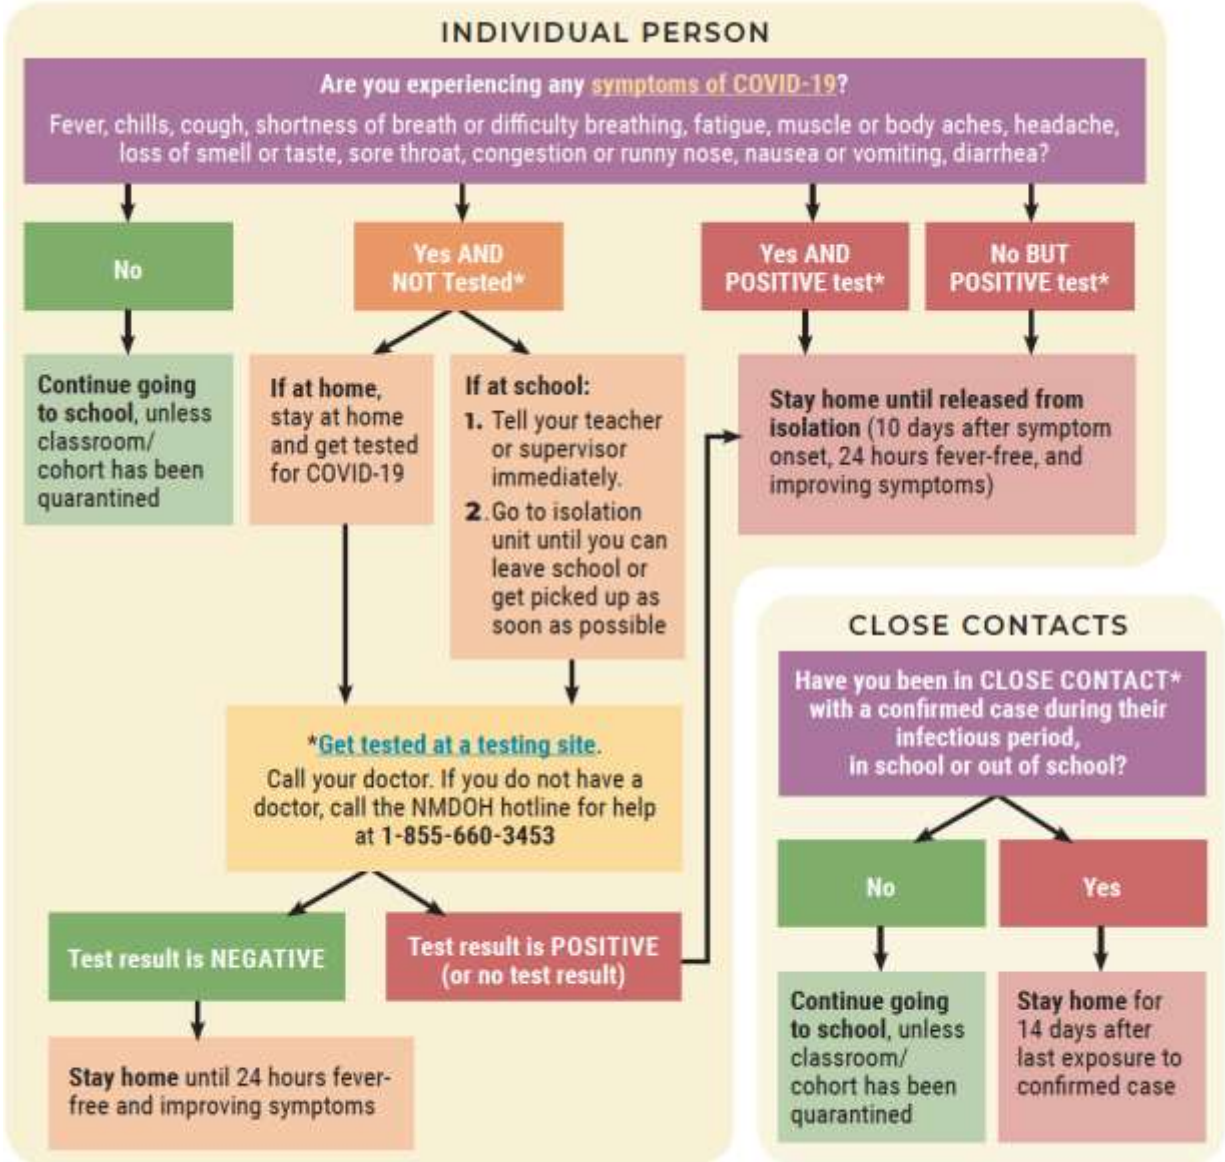

The Albuquerque Institute for Math and Science @ UNM will return for the 2021-22 school year with Full In-Person Learning.

For Full Reentry, all students will attend school on campus Monday - Friday according to the daily school schedule. Students will remain in their cohort/homeroom group, which will expand to include all students in the homeroom. Students will resume their rotations to classrooms for their content specific class blocks.

- Masks must be worn by all students and staff when on campus, except when eating lunch.
- AIMS @ UNM will not offer an online-only option for the 2021-22 school year. If you seek a distance learning option, please visit the New Mexico Public Education Department's web page for Virtual School Enrollment (ped.state.nm.us/virtual-schools-map/)

For general information about COVID-19, please refer to WHO, the CDC, and the New Mexico Department of Health. For specific medical questions and information, please contact your student's primary care physician. If you have symptoms related to COVID-19, call the NMDOH Coronavirus Hotline at (855) 600-3453.

In the event of a COVID exposure or positive test in your family, please communicate with the school. AIMS @ UNM is required to report and contact trace any positive cases associated with students, staff, or families. Your cooperation helps us keep our entire community safe. We use the below NMPED approved flowchart to determine requirements for student or staff quarantine:
